Outlook for the Farmer.

Nature has proclaimed the fact that we are to have an open Spring. It is in the very air. There is but one thing to fear and that is a late frost of sufficient severity to kill the fruit, for the orchards will this year be in the attitude of defying a nipping visitation. It is going to be somewhat of an involuntary gambler's chance, but outside the rather doubtful outlook, the farmers will have nothing to fear. They will have the opportunity of beginning farm work much in advance of the ordinary season—in fact, some of them are already taking advantage of the weather and conditions—and they are in the mood for casting large crops of all kinds. In case the orchards finally escape, the coming year promises to be one of the greatest on the North Carolina farms that has been known in many seasons.—Charlotte Observer.

This Year's Campaign.

The Greenville News, in discussing the political campaign this year, wonders if there will be as much mud-slinging and personal and factional abuse as we have had in years past.

A point that is worth thinking about, now before the campaign opens.

Men realize, when in their right minds that no worthy cause can be advanced by such methods.

Abuse of one candidate is no proof that another candidate is better fitted for the office.

Rather, it may be construed that the opposing candidate is lacking in real fitness or merit of his own.

And then political success achieved by such means is invariably of short duration. The people soon learn if they have been deceived or imposed upon, and they are quick to resent it.

We do not have many political issues in this state. Most of our politics is more or less personal; that is, a choice between men.

This leads to personal discussions, and there have many abuses of it in times past. That we have not always secured the best results is admitted by all.

This would be a good time for the voters to be thinking about this, now before the campaign opens.

The Greenville paper suggests that the candidate who first starts mud-slinging, should be the first one to be scratched on the ticket, and this is a good suggestion.

If all the voters will adopt this suggestion, and let it be known that they intend to live up to it, we will have a clean campaign this year.—Anderson Mail.

Grippe.

Grippe, more commonly spelled grip, has caused more deaths than tuberculosis or smallpox. It is infectious, and has been recognized as a distinct disease for more than four hundred years.

It has, in times past, swept over a continent with fearful mortality, and at one time the entire civilized world was afflicted and sailors on the high seas did not escape.

Grippe is superficially much like the common cold, but its germ—a cylinder—is as distinct and individual under a microscope as the germ of typhoid.

The disease is transmitted by sneezing, coughing, spitting, and using common drinking vessels. And because all people are careless, the world has not been free of the disease for centuries.

Some years, when the disease is epidemic, it is mild. This year the reverse is true, and many deaths are reported from different sections of the country.

The symptoms are distinct. The muscles become tender; the bones and joints ache; there is severe pain in the temples and at the back of the head; the throat swells and becomes raw, and the membranous linings exude a yellow substance. Occasionally there is vomiting, and always nausea.

The place for a grippe patient is in bed. A little exposure will probably result in grippl pneumonia. If the patient refuses to give up, and goes about his affairs, a nervous and physical breakdown is probable.

The mental depression that is a part of the malady makes a grocer of the patient, and he becomes unfit for human society.

It might be added that shortcomings in this week's Tribune may be laid to the fact that the editor has it.—Fountain Inn Tribune.

KEEP OYSTERS BY FREEZING

Experiments Made by New Jersey Man Show Bivalves Alive After Six Weeks.

Sayville, N. J.—Preserving shell oysters in cold storage has been successfully tried by Capt. Frederick Ockers of West Sayville.

"I am convinced that frozen oysters will live for a great length of time," he says. "They will practically be in a state of suspended animation and can be kept indefinitely until wanted. Then they may be gradually thawed back to life."

Captain Ockers' idea is that during suspended animation their condition will be similar to that of the frog frozen in a cake of ice. Captain Ockers believes that oysters can be put into the freezer in April or any other time when they are in prime condition and held for a favorable market. He has made successful experiments up to six weeks, and believes that if an oyster can be frozen for six weeks and still live the process may be extended indefinitely.

Bill Smith's Way.
I don't think much of Bill Smith's way; he never sells a bale of hay. He even keeps his cottonseed. Now I find shucks is cheaper feed. Bill stuffs his cow son good corn meal; if mine get corn they have to steal. He paid a hundred for a calf; the things folks do make me laugh. I wish some one would tell me, please, what good Bill gets from sowing peas. He's always messing with nature, while I find fertilizer surer. To hunt and fish Bill has no time; he's busy putting out more lime. Burning off don't do no harm, and I have lived on many a farm. The county agent can talk and snort, you can't keep land from wearing out. Bill's boys get ten bucks for a pig; for folks that have to sweat and dig, there's some can surely play the fool; no sir, my boys don't go to school. What? Out of meat and flour low? Then to the store I'll have to go. There ain't a bank will take my note, old Wilson'll never get my vote. The whole administration's rotten; we'll all just have to plant more cotton.—Carl Hammer in Progressive Farmer.

Town and Country.

In a talk before the Chamber of Commerce some time ago, Professor Daniel of Clemson college commented upon the unfortunate fact that there existed in some communities of the state a spirit of antagonism and feeling of suspicion on one hand and of superiority on the other between the people in the country and those who live in the towns and cities. Professor Daniel well pointed out that such a feeling of antagonism was a bar to progress and a source of annoyance to those who would like to witness a steady and material growth in prosperity of all classes of citizens.

In the current issue of the Progressive Farmer we find the same idea expressed in an editorial, which says in part:

"Just why there should be any harmful antagonism between farmers and business men of our towns and cities is hard to see. The truth is that the average farmer, or any group of farmers, is just about as good a man and as desirable a citizen, little better, little worse, than the average business man or group of business men.

"Equally true is, in nearly every part of the south, that the well being of a community, its rise to prosperity or its fall to backwardness and dry rot, is or should be the concern of farmer and town man alike. Backwardness in methods, low yields and ignorance on the farm make the town and the man who lives in the town poorer; ignorance of modern business methods, greed and lack of civic pride in the town correspondingly have their demoralizing effect on the farmer and the farm."

If it be true that there exists such a feeling it can not be grounded in any real grievance, it surely can have no basis except in fancy and certainly ought not to mar the relations of those from the town and the country whom business or social duties bring into contact. The interests of town and country are too mutual and the indebtedness of each to the other is too great to permit of room for aught but mutual respect and hearty co-operation for the general welfare.

It should be the duty of all good citizens in both town and country to strive for the elimination of such a spirit if it exists.—Greenville Piedmont.

WHO HAS THE GOODS?

SWIFT

It is common gossip in the South that SWIFT are the only people who can deliver 50% of last year's tonnage. We declined large profits from powder manufacturers and reserved our materials for our Southern Fertilizer Trade. We did this, believing that we will be repaid by well satisfied customers for having held our Sulphuric Acid, Acid Phosphate and Potash for our regular fertilizer business.

We have the goods all stacked up in fine, dry, well cured condition with a shipping organization ready to give the famous Swift Service. Contracting is on with a rush and the indications point surely to a fertilizer demand in the South far in excess of the fertilizers available.

We advise every dealer and every farmer to place his orders for the earliest possible shipment he can take so as to be sure to get his fertilizer requirements. Buy Swift's and take no chance and get in your shipping orders now.

His Definition.

It is reasonable to suppose that Christ, the author and founder of the Christian religion, knew what constitutes Christianity. You and I are absurd when we endeavor to say what Christianity is. Only He can fix the metes and bounds of it, define it, and fix its laws. He founded his religion on love, and on that foundation erected a noble structure. Hear him:

"If ye love me, keep my commandments."

"If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love."

"This is my commandment, that ye love one another."

"Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command ye."

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength, and with all thy power; and thy neighbor as thyself. On these two commandments hang all the law and the prophets."

How can any man fail to understand so simple a matter? The whole of the Christian religion, the whole of our duty to the Creator, the whole of our obligation to one another, yea, even the Great God himself—all are explained and comprised in this one word: Love. For it is written, God is love.

Creeds and isms and isms may spring up without end, and smooth and plausible men may seek to distort and twist and modify and explain away; cranks may lay stress upon minor points and rascals may divert the truth to their own ends, but throughout all eternity the words of the Christ will remain firm and true, and those who love Him will follow in humble, child-like faith the inexpressible beauty and boundless comprehension of that phrase: Love one another.—Mountain Inn Tribune.

A POSITIVE STATEMENT BY A BIG BUSINESS MAN

"Neglect of Apparently Unimportant Conditions Wrecks Many a Healthy Growing Business"

W. S. ELKIN, JR.

a prominent druggist of Atlanta, Ga., is authority for the above positive statement. In explaining this statement he asked two questions and offered one suggestion.

If a growing healthy business turns and begins to run down hill, what is the condition of the owner's health? Almost always, unusually bad.

What was the first cause of his poor health? Constipation. This constipation could have been avoided by taking Rexall Orderlies occasionally. They are a pleasant candy tablet laxative which can be used by men, women or children with the best results.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O. Sold by all Druggists, 75c. Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.
